PRESIDENTS MESSAGE

Steve Sheard, President, MEVRS

Presidents Message

July, 2011

Survival mode is the agenda for your Rose Garden until the end of September! Watch for stress, Keep Dead Heading, Cut blooms for the house if the bush is strong and has plenty of leaf coverage, Water every other day and maybe every day when the temperatures go over 110F, Fertilize at half strength, Wash the bushes once a week. Those are the key items for survival. Do not give up. Yes, my bushes are not enjoying these very hot days.

Sue & I just got back from our vacation in Southern Europe. A Cruise starting in Rome Italy, visiting Greece and Turkey, ending in Venice Italy. We saw a few roses so I took pictures that captured not just the rose but the archeology in the area.

ROSE CARE CORNER for July

by Phyllis Henslin, Consulting Rosarian

July Rose Care

During the summer months we don't look for perfection in our roses, but we need to continue to care for them so they survive the summer heat. Your rose beds should be covered with 2 to 4 inches of mulch, which will keep the ground cooler, assist in moisture retention and discourage weeds.

Irrigation: The lack of adequate water is the number1 reason for roses dying during the summer months. If you drip irrigate, water 4 to 5 times per week with a minimum of 4 gallons each time. It also helps to water a second time in the same day once a month. This allows the water to move lower and wider, washing the salts in the soil away from the root system. This will help prevent salt burn on the plants.

If you are growing roses in pots, water them daily as they tend to dry out quickly. Once or twice a month, deep water your pots to help push the salts out of the root zone.

Use your water wand and hose off your roses several times per week. Spray the top and undersides of the leaves to discourage spider mites, which may be lingering on the leaves. This also helps to increase humidity around the bushes.

Fertilizing: Fertilize at half rate every six weeks during the summer. Use a good Organic fertilizer such as Gro Ganic. Roses need to be fed during the summer so that they will be healthy enough to start growing again when temperatures start to moderate in late Sept. or early October. Be sure and water before and after you fertilize.

Deadheading: It is important to remove spent blooms on a regular basis. Dead head conservatively, cutting at a shorter distance down the cane. Leave as many leaves on the plant as possible to provide more protection on the canes from the sun. Also more leaves on the plant, provides more nutrition to the plant.

Garden Tip of the Month:

This is the time to sit down, enjoy a cool glass of lemonade and decide what new roses you would like to add to your garden when the heat abides. A suggestion is the new 2012 All-America Rose Selection winner, Sunshine Daydream, a light yellow grandiflora rose. Read more about this rose in the July/August issue of the American Rose magazine.

*ARS Judge ARS PSWD Chair of Arrangement Judges

Dear Rose Society President:

The American Rose Society has embarked on a very important fund raising campaign, the “100 Grand Campaign”, the goal of which is to raise $100,000 for the ARS General Fund by Sept. 30th of this year. Declining membership and rising costs have put the society in a precarious financial situation, and our Board of Directors decided that this is an appropriate way to address this problem.

To begin with, let me emphasize that none of the money raised in this campaign will go toward the Gardens of the Rose Center or other grounds at our Shreveport headquarters. It will all be used for the General Fund, which in effect pays for member services of all kinds. Inability to raise sufficient money through this campaign and other methods will inevitably result in a reduction in member services in one form or another.

I have heard complaints from members that the ARS is constantly asking for money without tightening our belt or seeking other sources of revenue. I would emphatically respond that this is not true; we are making continual efforts and progress in both these areas, and I would like to cite some examples:

- Cuts and reductions in ARS staff for the 2011 year have resulted in a savings of c. $75,000.
- A contract with a new publisher for the magazine, Annual and Handbook will save us c. $20,000 per year.
- We recently entered into an agreement with Boehm China to reproduce ARS Members’ Choice and other rose varieties on their products.

We have established a full-time position of Director of Development with a 2-year grant from the Maintenance Endowment Trust, the sole purpose of which will be fund raising through various avenues.

We are running our 100 Grand Campaign concurrently with our highly successful Annual Campaign (formerly Patrons’ Campaign), the latter of which is directed primarily to individual donors. Consequently, we are asking rose societies and ARS Districts to step up and make the 100 Grand Campaign a success. We are not mandating or even suggesting a specific amount from any society, but rather that each society contribute whatever they can.

We realize that some societies will be able to contribute from their existing treasuries, while others will not, and for the latter we have come up with a number of ideas and suggestions for fund raisers. These are listed on the 100 Grand Campaign tab on the ARS website, but I’ll repeat them here as well.

- Organize a rose sale
- Ask for donations in your registration forms for District meetings.
- Hold a silent auction at your local and district events.
- Sell raffle tickets at your meetings — the winner receives half of the funds while the other half goes to the 100 Grand Campaign.

- Participate in speaking engagements or set up seminars and ask for an honorarium benefiting the 100 Grand Campaign.
- Decorate and sell rose containers at your District meeting.
- Hold a rummage sale as part of your educational symposiums or rose shows.
- Design and sell a local society t-shirt and donate the profit to the 100 Grand Campaign.
- Decorate a hat with roses and pass it around.
- Provide homemade cookies at public functions with a donation jar.
- Buy rose jewelry wholesale and sell at meetings or shows.
- Ask members to donate their unwanted used books for sale on Amazon or to a used bookstore.
- Provide local businesses with a donation jar.
- Organize a bake sale as part of your local events.
- Auction off gardening services.
- Work with local restaurants to hold an ARS night to receive a portion of the night's profits.

Purchase rose books in bulk at wholesale prices and resell them (see President's Message in the July/August American Rose magazine).

Many of these activities can not only foster a spirit of unity and community among your members as they work in concert for a common good, but the proceeds from these can be used to benefit the local, as well as the American, Rose Society, making them win-win undertakings.

Our records indicate that your local society has yet to make a contribution to the 100 Grand Campaign, and thus I am writing to you with an urgent request to bring this matter before your Board of Directors and/or your membership at the earliest possible opportunity. The American Rose Society needs your help to continue operating at our present level, and I am confident that your will do whatever they can to make this campaign a success.

Thank you for your time and consideration of this very important matter. If you have any questions about the 100 Grand Campaign, please feel free to contact me at kjwyckoff@comcast.net or at 206-824-3307.

Sincerely,

Jeff Wyckoff
ARS President
